APPENDIX F

IRI

(Istituto per la Ricostruzione Industriale, or Institute for Industrial Reconstruction) is largely a holding company, administering much of the nation's production of pig iron, steel, cement, shipbuilding, and machinery as well as such services as telephones, maritime shipping, road-construction, banking, the radio and television networks, and the national airline.

IRI subsidiaries tend to be operated like private business firms. ENI on the other hand has a policy of vertical integration ranging from petroleum prospecting to gasoline service stations and motels.

IRI started in the depression years of the 1930's. After the end of World War II the IRI received supervisory powers over state holdings in industry. These are at present controlled for the most part through joint stock companies in which private capital also has interests.

The principal IRI holding companies are:

FINSIDER which controls steel industry

FINMECCANICA which controls large number of manufacturing industries as: automobiles and power plants, electrical engineering, rail way equipment and precision tools.

FINMARE through which IRI plays an important role in sea transport.

ENI

(Ente Nazionale Idrocarburi, or National Petroleum Group) engages in all facets of petroleum production and distribution, both at home and abroad.

ENEL

(ENTE NACIONALE ENERGIA ELETTRICA) National Agency for Electric Energy.
